How She Loved One Man But Married Another.

A Hasty Marriage, Which Mr. Willard Raymond Vainly Tried to Look At in the Light of a Joke—Wedding Presents From the Bride's Family on Which the Monogram Must be Changed.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 12.—One year ago Miss Nellie Price, an English lady of 19 arrived here from London and took up her residence in the elegant new freehouses of Mrs. Foster, on Broad street. Miss Price soon convinced her friends by her superior education, refined manners and gifted conversational powers that she was a young lady of rare accomplishments. She possesses a perfect figure, a graceful carriage and a clear, brilliant complexion, with large dark eyes. She soon made the acquaintance of a Mrs. Smith, who has been her bosom friend ever since. Last fall Mrs. Price, a widow, chanced to ride across the Housatonic Bridge. He was driving a dashing pair of horses, with another gentleman and two ladies in his carriage. They were returning from a walk in the woods. Raymond stopped his carriage and while his husband's horses were under full career she fired four shots from a revolver into the party. A full account of the affair was given at the time.

Mr. Raymond then sued for divorce. Mr. Raymond did not oppose her. At the trial Mrs. Price, with tears in her eyes, told the court she had brought the suit because she loved him still, and only brought the suit because she was a widow of my husband," she said. She was granted a divorce and now resides in New Haven, Conn. She is a widow on State street. It now comes to light that Mr. Raymond had for several months been paying attention to Miss Price. He has taken her to drives, and has invited her to his home. Raymond's wife, while her husband's horses were under full career she fired four shots from a revolver into the party. A full account of the affair was given at the time.

THE LABOR TROUBLES.

Outbreak of the Strikers Faced at East Saginaw.

Pinkerton's Detectives, Armed With Winchester Rifles, on the Scene—Special Police Sworn In—Threatened Attack on the Water Works.

East Saginaw, Mich., July 13.—The city is full of caloric this morning. Eighty-three of Pinkerton's detectives arrived on the early train armed each with a Winchester and two revolvers. They are now being sworn in. One half of them will go to Saginaw City, where one or two mills propose to start work. The other half will remain here this morning in which he states that he has called upon the State and County authorities for aid, and he believes ample arrangements have been perfected.

A similar proclamation has been issued by the Mayor of Saginaw City. It is reported that three companies of State troopers will be called out to assist the police in their work.

The strike is threatened to be a general one.

The strikers are incensed at the steps taken by the authorities and the presence of the armed detectives.

LATER.

The Water Works are now guarded by a detachment of Company E Michigan State troops of this city. A large number of State police are sworn in and on the streets the strike has been prohibited.

At a meeting of the strikers this forenoon State Representative Barry made an incendiary speech, calling on the strikers to form a circular boycott of the Courier, which, while conceding the right of men to strike, has denounced the act of violence and criticized the strike for not having been more promptly.

It is believed that there is ample force now in the two cities to preserve order.

A Striker Sentenced.

Kansas City, Mo., July 13.—In the United States Court today another of the cases against the Wabash strikers from Moberly, charged with interfering with the movement of trains, was concluded. James McKenzie was sentenced to thirty days imprisonment.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Fatal Riot Between the Soldiers and Civilians in Ireland—Flashes by Cable.

WATERFORD, IRELAND, July 13.—The anniversary of the battle of the Boyne yesterday caused a large increase in the usual Sunday number of drunken men to be on the streets at night. Among them were many of the soldiers belonging to the Welsh regiment doing garrison duty here.

The mob, armed with stones, attacked the soldiers, during which the latter bayoneted to death one of former.

The commotion attracted crowds of men to the scene. When the civilians realized that one of their number had been killed, they became furious and fell upon the soldiers with such force that the latter were compelled to beat a hasty retreat to their barracks. The mob followed them up, but being threatened with powder and ball if they attempted to force an entrance to the barracks, they contented themselves with smashing the windows of the barracks with rocks. The rage of the populace was so great this morning that the demand was best to transfer the Welsh regiment to some other place. This was done immediately, and as the soldiers marched from the barracks to the railway station, surrounded by police, the mob followed them, hooting and stoning the soldiers. Several Parnellite members of Parliament have telegraphed that they will bring the matter before the Government and demand an immediate inquiry into the outrage. It is generally believed that the soldiers began the row.

AMERICAN RAILWAY SHARE.

Lowmon, July 13.—The Standard's financial article, referring to the difficulties occurring in connection with the sale of stocks of American railway companies in accordance with the laws of the United States, says: "It is time that the Stock Exchange Committee devised measures to avoid such troubles. Its treatment of American railway securities has hitherto been too lax in every respect, as unfortunate investors have found to their cost."

Spain.

THE CHOLERA.

MADRID, July 13.—There were 1,417 new cases of cholera reported in Spain yesterday and 667 deaths. The cholera has broken out in four places in the province of Leon. Forty-two new cases were reported yesterday in that province, and eighteen deaths from the disease. The official report shows a total of 30,000 cases in Spain, since the inception of the scourge up to last evening, and a total of 18,000 deaths.

The Dominion.

ARRESTED FOR ROBBERY.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 13.—Duncan Mackenzie of this city has been arrested for alleged complicity in the robbery of $5,000 at Harrison, Mich., about a year ago. While a circus was at that place the town treasurer was gagged and bound to a chair at about 6 o'clock and the sum was taken from his safe. Mackenzie admits having been at Harrison at the time, but denies that he had anything to do with the robbery. The case will be argued as soon as the American sheriff arrives.

CLOSED ITS DOORS.

Assignment of the St. Bernard Dollar Store—Particulars of the Failure.

A deed of assignment was filed this afternoon in the Recorder's Office by the Charles A. Fowle St. Bernard Dollar Store Company to John H. Bohle. The action is pursuant to a resolution of the stockholders at a meeting held Thursday. The company found that it was unable to meet its liabilities, and that it is now in an insolvent condition. The depressed state of business and the large expense in carrying on the concern induced the stockholders to adopt the following resolution:

James W. Fowle, the president, was authorized to execute the assignment for the benefit of all the creditors. He states under oath that the value of the general stock of fancy goods, dry goods, crockery, chinaware, pictures, jewelry and silverware, and all bills receivable are valued at $3,000. The furniture and fixtures are valued at $2,000.

THE CAUSE OF THE FAILURE.

The store was closed this afternoon and a notice was posted on the door to the effect that the establishment was in the hands of the assignee. Mr. James W. Fowle, 22 years, and Theresa Smith, 16, were the proprietors. The firm was incorporated in 1879, and the present value of the capital of $30,000, which was increased last fall to $100,000, but the increase was never paid up. The firm had a number of part-time servants, girls and women employed in it out of work. Little surprise is caused by the failure, as it has been expected for some time.

Killed a Tramp.

BIRMINGHAM, July 13.—A journal Novi special says: An unknown tramp invaded the house of Wm. Jones last night and demanded lodgings, and on being refused smashed the furniture. He then drove the family from the house. Mr. Jones was at a neighbor's at the time and returned with a gun with which he shot the tramp, killing him instantly. The Police Department, which has been investigating Jones, entirely exonerating him from blame.

WILL MEET TO-MORROW.

Annual Convention of the American Hebrew Congregational Council.

Large Number of Delegates Arriving To-Day—Programme of Entertainment Provided for the Visitors—Meeting of the Executive Committee This Evening.

The sixth biennial convention of the Union American Hebrew Congregational Council meets to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Harmonie Club, on Eleventh and Olive streets. One hundred and ten delegates, representing all of the largest and most important Hebrew congregations of the United States, will be present, prominent among which will be the four young rabbis who graduated at the Union College last year. Their presence will be quite a feature of the convention, which is expected to, and doubtless will, take an active and important part in the proceedings. These young gentlemen, who represent the leading Hebrews of the country, will be of great interest to the public. The delegates will be entertained at the Lindell Hotel, which is located in response to a general desire for closer relations and united action among the American Hebrew congregations upon all matters pertaining to their religion and welfare. The programme is materially from those published after the occurrence.

About 11:30 p. m. yesterday Charles Mueller, 20-year-old Mueller, driver of street car No. 4 of the Franklin Avenue Extension line, was attacked near Goodes avenue and badly beaten by a lot of hoodlums who ran south after the occurrence before their victims were able to identify them.

Two police are looking for a man who stole $100 from him. The man may be skinned to the bone, but he is not dead. He is a 20-year-old, so dark that he presents the appearance of an Indian and weighs 160 pounds.

Ross Haxmonius, clerk of the Lindell Hotel, at the request of several boarders of the house who have friends and relatives summering at Lake Ontario, telephoned to the office of the Journal for information concerning the disaster on the lake yesterday and received the following reply: "No one from Hotel St. Louis lost in yesterday's storm. O. SCUDERI."

Men's $7 50 black worsted and blue flannel suits will go for $30 and $35. All goods must be sold before we remove.

A sum of single harness was stolen from B. G. Lawrence's stable, No. 3894 Clark avenue.

A dozen of ex-Union soldiers and sailors will be held to-night at Justice Elliman's office, 2025 S. Broadway.

W. G. Morris, a twelve-year-old lad residing at 2025 Euclid street, died this morning of injuries received by falling out of his bedroom window.

St. Louis Lodge of the Theatrical Mechanics' Benevolent Association have elected J. M. Malone as their president of the Grand Lodge which meets in Boston, July 25, 1885.

ELKHORN SPRINGS, residing at 2240 Grant street, had his pocket picked yesterday afternoon by a thirteen-year-old colored girl from the Elmwood Hotel, who was identified by Officer Gottwald.

The body of Robert W. Howard, youngest son of the late Richard Howard, will be brought here from Trinidad, Col., for interment. Young Howard was found Friday evening by Mullin from a swing.

Subscribers to the Post-Dispatch who contemplate leaving the city during the summer will receive their paper as usual if they will leave the new address at this office or give it to the carrier.

The best way to smash the business prosperity of St. Louis is to hit it with a CLUB.

BETWEEN SAM CLUBS on the ferry and JAY GOULD on the bridge, the trade of St. Louis has a tight squeeze.

ST. LOUIS has lost most of its cattle and provision trade. When its grain trade is dead the verdict of the Coroner's jury will be "CLUBBED to death."

THE trade of St. Louis which goes over the bridge has to pay the bridge arbitrary. The trade which stops in East St. Louis pays the CLUBS arbitrary. "You takes your choice and you pays your money."

The Merchants' Exchange is as full of good resolutions as the road to shoal. We should like to have a few resolutions on the recent advance in switching charges imposed by the President of the Republican establishment.

WHICH one of the city officials is responsible for the bad management which permitted the simultaneous destruction of four blocks of Broadway? Was it TRIMMER, FLD, or Street Commissioner TURNER, or was it his Honor the Mayor? Speak out, gentlemen.

An Irish judge has decided that the City Council of Dublin has no right to change the name of Sackville street against the wishes of the people who live along that famous street. We have to go to Ireland to get any recognition of the principle that the people have any rights in the streets.

WHEN it comes to taking trade away from St. Louis, a Missouri road will do its share of hauling a car load of lumber from Chicago to Kansas City at the modest charge of $5 for 400 miles. When the trade comes to our doors, a St. Louis monopolist charges $3 for hauling a car four miles or just 6,400 per cent of the Chicago rate.

THE Republican used to be the organ of the Round Table. The Round Table is a club devoted to the promotion of the business interests of St. Louis. We should like to have an expression of opinion from the Round Table on the recent advance in switching charges in East St. Louis and its effect on the business interests of this city.

THE ranchmen of the Indian Territory are making a pretense of discussing law points with Secretary LAMAR. The will of the cattle company enforced by the cowboy's pistol is the only law they recognize on the plains, until the land-grabbers fall out among themselves and it becomes a question of which side shall secure the aid of a United States Marshal.

THE leading stockholder in the Republican was recently so fortunate as to realize on his stock in the gas monopoly at $100 a share. The president of the Republican company is also president and manager of the Wiggins Ferry monopoly. If the Republican folks could only get back their stock in the bridge, their standing among the monopolies which are strangling St. Louis would be complete.A DEMOCRATIC politician who is known throughout the State for his ability to absorb misinformation is quoted anonymously by the Republican as authority for the statement that the Post-DISPATCH is supporting JAMES BURNS for the Senate. If JAMES considers that we are supporting him we should like to be favored with a few extracts from papers which are opposing him; they would make right good reading.THE Republican has time and again endeared itself to the business men of St. Louis. It fought the bridge until it got stock in payment for editorials. It fought the new Custom House because it was not located on Third street. It wasted a million dollars of the people's money by turning the back of the Chamber of Commerce towards the growth of St. Louis. It fought the Exposition until the stock was all subscribed. Now the President of the Republican establishment has levied a toll of from 60 cents to $1 20 on every car of grain and freight arriving across the river. President CLARKS at the head of the Republican is the right man in the right place.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL GARLAND advises Secretary WHITNEY that an act of Congress appropriating money for the construction of a particular description of vessel recommended by the Naval Board of Construction was the only authority the preceding Secretary had for letting the Dolphin contract to JOHN ROACH, and that said act is necessarily part of any valid contract for the expenditure of such appropriation. No Secretary can divert to other uses an appropriation made for a specified purpose. If the contract with ROACH was not in accordance with the provisions of the appropriation, it was without authority and not binding on the United States, and if the Dolphin was not built in accordance with the requirements of the appropriation, no Secretary is authorized to accept the vessel, and the money already advanced to the builder is recoverable. If this is not the law, it ought to be.

THE Republicans, this morning copies from the Chicago Inter Ocean the following tribute to the City of Duluth.

The laughed at and ridiculed Duluth upon Lake Superior to-day stands third in the list of grain-receiving points, beating St. Louis, Milwaukee and Toledo. The Congressmen who roared with laughter at Proctor's ridicule of Duluth may live to see the time they will wish they had invested in town lots.

Possibly one reason why Duluth has flourished is that none of its newspapers are controlled by men who have gotten things fixed so that they can levy a tax on the trade of the town whenever business is dull, as has been done here by the boss of the Republican.A FEW weeks ago, when the Wiggins Ferry Company gobbled up the Venice and Madison County ferries, Mr. CLUBS (President of the Republican Company) said it was "a matter which did not concern the public." The Post-DISPATCH intimated at the time that the matter did concern the public and that the people of St. Louis had a deep interest in knowing about the consolidation of the transportation interests which control the approaches of St. Louis. Now that Mr. CLUBS (President of the Republican Company) has completed his schemes by the purchase of the connecting railway, he drops his pretense that "it does not concern the public." He tells the public that hereafter the commerce of St. Louis in addition to its present burdens, must pay a tax of from 60 cents to $1 20 on every car of freight which does not pay the bridge arbitrary. The people of St. Louis can judge for themselves the motives of the President of the Republican in throwing the mantle of antiquity, that oriental fancy swelled into enormous dimensions, the cities of Nineveh, Babylon, Thebes and Rome are said to have contained in their day a population almost as large as that of the greatest modern capital. The drift of population toward the great business centers is not a new movement, but is probable that it never in the past attained the dimensions that it has in the present.

The London Exposures. From the New York Tribune.

The Pall-Mall Gazette has carried the Criminal Law bill through the Commons. A week ago that measure, designed principally for the protection of the young women of tender years, was apparently hung up for the remainder of the session, along with many other Radical crotches and humanitarian projects. The terrible recitals which have been published this week have forced a reluctant Parliament to act upon it and to order it to a third reading, practically insuring its passage. This is a result that goes far towards justifying the conduct of that journal in exposing the vices and immorality of aristocratic London. Practical, sober-minded and fastidious legislators, representing in the main the middle classes of English society, would not have taken up that Radical measure of social reform if their indignation had not been aroused by the series of articles which has caused such intense excitement throughout England. Mr. Stead, the editor of the Pall-Mall Gazette, may spare himself the trouble of publishing letters from Mr. Spurgeon and the Bishop in commendation of his course. The Commons have given his journal a certificate of good character and reformatory efficiency. He may even venture to despise the taunts of his rivals and the denunciations of prurient critics in what is known as the best society. He may hope to be instrumental in winning a great moral victory even if Marlborough House stops taking his paper.

No Confused Wanted. From the Springfield Leader.

The unfair ruling of Secretary LAMAR (a Confederate) and Pension Commissioner BLACK that no doctor who was in the Confederate service shall be appointed a pension examiner prescribes at least two of the physicians who are applying for the appointment in this country. Had a Republican Administration made such a distinction there would have been more indignation than was ever exhibited against the multiplicity of Republican usurpations and acts of tyranny while they had the power. When we elected Mr. Cleveland it was understood the war was over, but we were mistaken. If doctors who served in the Confederate Army are to be excluded from public office why not exclude lawyers, priests, preachers and laymen? There is just as much reason and sense in one as in the other. It is just as much as to say that doctors who served on the Confederate side are incapable of passing fairly upon the physical ailments of Union soldiers. This is ridiculous and unjust, and we shall always think Secretary LAMAR has made a mistake which it is not too late to correct.

A PRELIMINARY sham battle between Senator COCKRELL and two or three of his friends in different sections of the State seems to be the first thing in the programme for the next Senatorial election. Accordingly an alleged interview with "a prominent politician" appears in the Republican to illuminate the surrounding darkness with this chunk of fox-fire:

Don't you remember that Mr. BURNS and Mr. GLOVER voted together in the congressional caucus held in Washington last March? Then the Post-DISPATCH is enlisted in that behalf, and is trying to help BURNS by stirring up and maintaining the war on COCKRELL. It is alleged that Governor MARSHALL is likewise for BURNS, but Dan Kennedy of Springfield says that the Governor is for Judge SHEDD, which simply means he is not for COCKRELL. In any event, however, Mr. BURNS is now engaged in quietly selecting his men for the Legislature, and very soon the trouble will begin.

When Col. JAMES N. BURNS was in very bad odor with the Democrats of the St. Joe district, no man worked harder than Senator COCKRELL to subjugate and reconcile them to BURNS' bossiness. Since BURNS has had a seat in the House and COCKRELL in the Senate, the former has been as well off apparently as if he were filling both seats himself, and if he is now "quietly selecting his men for the Legislature" they will probably turn out to be favorable to COCKRELL as a second choice. As for the Post-DISPATCH, it is not making any war upon Senator COCKRELL nor conspiring with anybody to defeat him. Nobody but himself can defeat him. The Post-DISPATCH found no fault with him as an inoffensive Senator until the roll of his relatives in office challenged comment, and in spite of that serious blot upon his record it may yet find his best man in the field. The people of this country have to take mighty poor timber sometimes, simply because it is the best they can get.

Free Trade in Labor Only. From the Rich Hill Review.

The St. Louis Post-DISPATCH continues to show up the frauds in the assessment of the various lines of railroad in the State of Missouri. The "Frisco line" was shown to be assessed at about one-tenth the value placed upon it by the owners; now the Missouri Pacific is found to be assessed at less than one-sixth its owners' stated value and less than one-third of the Railroad Commissioners' valuation, which any man of sense knows, could not be under circumstances surrounding an August triple of railroad employees salaries in the State, be more than half the actual value. The Post-DISPATCH figures out and correctly too, that the State is defrauded and swindled out of a sum amounting to $14,000,000 by this one line of road, assessed by Jay Gould.

The Post-DISPATCH found no fault with him as an inoffensive Senator until the roll of his relatives in office challenged comment, and in spite of that serious blot upon his record it may yet find his best man in the field. The people of this country have to take mighty poor timber sometimes, simply because it is the best they can get.

The Fountain of London Vice. From the New York World.

Books have been written about the vices of London. Philanthropic associations have explored and endeavored to do missionary work among the vicious classes. The London journals have specifically exposed the immorality and crime that infest the metropolis and called for their suppression. Home Scourtiaries have been questioned from time to time about the increase of evil-doers, and Parliament has passed Mutual Criminal and other Acts supposed to be calculated to raise up a barrier between law-breakers and "society."

But all this association of virtue has been directed against vice in low life. It has had no reference to Asia, nor to Beigravia. It has been aimed at immorality, covered with rags, not with ribbons. The investigations have been made at the establishments of the "Tom-Alibians" of the great city, in the back slums of St. Giles and Seven Dials, the porches of Leicester Square, and under the arches of the London Bridge.

Again such revelations no one has protested. They have not been regarded as "monstrosities" and "obscene publications." The Houses of Lords and Commons have not been thrown into a white heat of indignation and a fever of excitement over the "iniquity" of the disclosures, and have not called upon the Home Secretary for the criminal prosecution of those who made them.

But now some one has climbed to the pinnacle of high life and uncovered the fountain-head of such crimes and immorality, the great cesspool of filth and corruption from which the foul streams, flowing through the subsoil, creep off into the Seven Dials and the Haymarket, corrupting all who come within their influences. It is no longer the degraded wrecks of the slums who are exposed, but the dandies of the drawing-room. The revelations reach the highest classes, not the lowest, and show a more revolting condition of morals among the aristocracy than among the residents of the city's rookeries.

What follows? The missionaries who ferret out and expose such crimes are denounced as publishers of obscene literature, and the "first gentlemen" in the land indignantly demand, not that the crimes shall be stopped, but that their detectors shall be punished. It is no longer a commendable work to reform to unearth vices and villainies too horrible to relate, but an offense against public virtue. And this because the high-born and wealthy are exposed.

porphyry and sentenced him to five years at Joliet with a clemency that must have surprised him, to say nothing of the prophets.

Cockrell's Walk-Over. From the Springfield Herald.

Democratic papers in Missouri are already canvassing the Senatorial situation with a view of ascertaining who are to be in the field at the expiration of Senator Cockrell's term. The St. Joe Gazette a short time ago denied with earnestness the report that Congressman James N. BURNS was ambitious for Senatorial preferment, and as the Gazette is Mr. BURNS' property, this declaration was taken as final, and for a while settled speculation on that point. It was only a temporary quietus, however, and Madame Rumor has again started the tongue of gossip. We are now assured positively that Col. BURNS will be a candidate, and that his friends throughout the State have already begun looking toward the election of a Legislator favorable to him. It would be said if the BURNS would prove, like the bumble-bee, to be biggest when first born.

Salt as an Infat Industry. From the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

The manufacture of salt in this country is not an "infant industry." It has had plenty of time to get upon its feet. There are less than half a dozen places in the United States where the business is carried on to an extent worth mentioning. Yet this product, one of the commonest of all necessities, is taxed to the enormous extent of 12 cents per hundred, in order that every citizen may choose whether he will pay a high price for the foreign article or use that which is still, by the protectionist's confession, vastly inferior. And this is one of the duties that are "inadequate."

Bandit "Influences." From the Kansas City Journal.

Another one of the lawyers who defended Frank James has gotten, or is about to get, an office at the head of the Missouri Democracy. He is Mr. W. M. RUSH, of Gallatin, who, it is said, is to be assistant United States District Attorney for the Western District of Missouri. When Mr. Rush gets into office, there will be but one of Frank James' lawyers left out in the cold, ex-Lieutenant Governor Charlie Johnson. We might remark, however, that all the attorneys who prosecuted Frank James, though Democrats they are, are out in the cold.

Right to Business. From the Wall Street News.

"The first thing to be done," said the new president of an Ohio railroad "is to hang up his hat; 'is to ascertain the amount of our indebtedness."

"Here are the figures," said the secretary. "We owe about $1,000,000."

Exactly, said the new president, is to issue stock enough to cover it. There is no more need of a railroad having a debt hanging over it than is that of the employees being paid once a month."

SHE LOST $1,100.

Mrs. P. K. Heller's Story of a Sensational Robbery.

A Woman's Struggle With a Burglar Which Continued Down a Long Flight of Stairs—Her Husband Sleeping Peacefully at the Time—The Police Discredit the Story.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—Mrs. P. K. Heller, the wife of a packet in the Custom House here, who resides with her husband and her father and mother at 1405 Ontario street, was mysteriously robbed yesterday evening. The house in which the family lives is a three-story brick structure, the back being out of a row of similar houses. Friday night Mr. Heller went to bed on the second story with one of the children, while his wife slept with another child on the floor above. Mr. Heller had brought home $1,100 a few days previously which he intended to go to Reading Saturday to invest. The money he gave to his wife, and she says she placed it in an oil skin bag which she tied around her waist and in so doing her hand touched the bag containing the money. He seized the bag, tore it open and took the money. Mrs. Heller caught him, but still uttered no cry. The burglar succeeded in descending the stairs, Mrs. Heller struggling with him. Then they passed through the kitchen, the burglar still clinging down the long stairs to the front door when the man threw her aside and opened the door and rushed out. The man for the first time. Mr. Heller, seized his pistol and ran down stairs where he found his wife, who told him of the robbery. Mr. Watchman John Fagley outside the house. He was told of what had happened and he summoned policeman Simpson and an investigation was begun.

SEARCHED BY A MAN

Standing beside the woman whom she had not seen in the dark. He clutched her by the throat and choked her, and she said he had her hand and began to strangle her. She did not scream. He seized her arm around her waist and in so doing her hand touched the bag containing the money. He seized the bag, tore it open and took the money. Mrs. Heller caught him, but still uttered no cry. The burglar succeeded in descending the stairs, Mrs. Heller struggling with him. Then they passed through the kitchen, the burglar still clinging down the long stairs to the front door when the man threw her aside and opened the door and rushed out. The man for the first time. Mr. Heller, seized his pistol and ran down stairs where he found his wife, who told him of the robbery. Mr. Watchman John Fagley outside the house. He was told of what had happened and he summoned policeman Simpson and an investigation was begun. It did not appear to be excited. There were two slight scratches on her neck which she said might have been inflicted by the burglar when he grabbed her throat. She said she had the sense of being strangled. She said the thief was a tall, wiry man with a dark mustache. "How did he get the bag away from me?" she asked. "He took it away the moment his hand struck it." "Did he put his hand under your night dress?" "No; he tore it away from the outside." Mrs. Heller at first said she had been awakened by the noise of the fight, but then said she had been awakened by the sound of a pistol being discharged. She said it contained $1,130 in $10 and $20 bills. Her husband said that although the door of his house was open he did not hear any struggle between his wife and the thief as they went down the stairs and was not awakened until his wife screamed. He said that no one had been in the house. The dwellings on each side of the house—both occupied by women—were searched, but no trace of the thief was found. The police were called and the house was surrounded. Mr. Watchman Fagley says that from her condition when he was summoned she was undoubtedly robbed, and the marks of fingers were upon her breast and she spoke as though she had been choked.

FIXING A FACE.

Running a Circular Successfully Through a Man's Jaw and Nose.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 10.—After the delicate operation performed on a patient at the Medico Chirurgical Society yesterday, the astonished students of medical science are asking, "What next?" A gentleman came to the Wills Hospital a few days ago to be treated for a disease of the right eye, which caused it to bulge out from the socket. He was turned over to the Medico Chirurgical Society, and the students of the college, fifty miles below Albuquerque. His father, Jose Louis Lobato, was a famous violinist, generally known and referred to as Jose Louis, al

Music.

Geronimo, when a boy, was personally known to the Indians of that tribe, and the Indians of the Pueblo children and the oldest of the boys. Jose Luis, wife and children resided at Mansano, sixty miles east of Albuquerque, for several years, and it was at that time we became intimately acquainted with them. In the spring of 1885 he had a large wood contract with the Indians at Albuquerque, and quite vividly remember one morning, just about sunrise, at Coyote Springs, fourteen miles east of Albuquerque, of discovering eighteen Navajo Indians near camp, with 200 mules belonging to Juan Cristobal Armito, a man in the act of confounding our animals. Our muleo succeeded in capturing the bell mare, and mounting her, made camp, all the mules belonging to the ten following. The Indians, foiled in securing 100 more additional mules, turned with a fury in another direction, keeping upon the open plain.

GERONIMO'S MOTHER CAPTURED.

Want went to the military at Albuquerque, and three companies of cavalry, headed by Bias Lucero (who still lives in Albuquerque) as guides, proceeded to cut the Navajos, who were still in camp. In the afternoon, the Indians fled, and the Marquis de Villaflores, commanding the 10th Cavalry, went in pursuit, and captured the Navajo.

The Indians, who had scattered, gathered at Mansano, as far down as El Sierito, where the road passes from Mansano and Abo past to La Joya. The Indians from this point discovered a Mexican, Geronimo, coming toward them, driven by two Mexican cavalrymen, and sent his card to a raving, tearing rose-bud, who has literally a pulverized face, and struck the Indians who were following him, shouting that he was the son of the great Geronimo.

Several of the Indians went out to capture the concern, but the men driving made a hard fight for liberty and a running battle for a distance of three miles was the result. The ammunition of the two men having been exhausted, the Indians closed in and killed them with lances. The one was killed for food, and the two women—mother and grandmother to Geronimo—himself and four brothers and sisters made captives.

A WILY MOVE.

The Navajos, from their lookout position had discovered the long line of cavalry positioned in the battle, the history of which is now well known. The Indians were well armed with bows and arrows, and the men were cut through. As the keen was rapidly through the face each artery was taken up without a mile.

When the work of the Indians was over, the soldiers followed the trail and captured the Navajo. The eye was held in place by an assistant, and the nose of the skin was cut off, and the skin was sewed fast. A wax model will be made of the face, and the wax model will give a half dozen dances and continue grinding out those dances, with variations, to the end of the chapter.

THE MATRIMONIAL MARKET.

Interesting Interview With an "Old Girl" on the Subject.

From the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Times Democrat's statistician started yesterday for the purpose of collecting reliable data and information as to the outlook for the coming season of the matrimonial market. He called at a $50,000 house in the aristocratic quarter of the town and sent his card to a raving, tearing rose-bud, who has literally a pulverized face, and struck the girl with a lasso.

He was a wretched woman, who was already betrothed to Pedro, a fellow townsmen.

"I have called, Miss," said the elderly, bald-headed father of the family, who had held statistical on everything improbable, "to interview you on the condition of the cotton, no, I mean the sugar—I should say the—matrimonial market. Have you any objection to giving me your views on the present crisis?"

The young girl said that she did not understand his business thoroughly. Supposing he was dancing a horserace, the chances are ten to one some voices in the audience will shout: 'Give us a real' or 'Give us a dead march'?"

"I am not a dancer," she said, "but I have already betrothed to Pedro, a fellow townsmen.
